

Terms of Use and Licensing Restrictions for Electronic Resources

The JAIN (Deemed-to-be University) Learning Resource Centre subscribes to many electronic journals and bibliographic databases to benefit the authorised users in member institutions. The terms and conditions for using these resources are spelt out in each publisher's electronic resource license agreements. It is the individual user's responsibility to ensure that the use of electronic resources does not breach the terms and conditions specified in the license agreements. Licenses vary from publisher to publisher; however, the general principles are as follows:

Permitted

- Viewing, downloading, copying, printing and saving a copy of search results.
- Viewing, downloading, copying, printing and saving individual articles.
- Using E-resources for study and research purposes.
- Sending a copy of an article to another authorised user (i.e. current faculty, students or staff).
- Posting the URL to the publisher's article version on a class website (publisher links will allow only authorised user access).

Not Permitted

- Robots or intelligent agents are used to do systematic, bulk, or automatic downloading.
- Systematic downloading or printing of entire Journal issues or volumes, or large portions of other e-resources (using e-resources for commercial gain in reselling).
- Transmitting, disseminating, or making online content available to unauthorised users (e.g., sending it to mailing lists or electronic bulletin boards).
- Posting the publisher's version or PDP of an article to an open class website.
- Users cannot let an authorised user use the licensed materials.
