Description of the Course

The Centre for Research in Social Sciences and Education (CeRSSE) and the Centre for Researcher Training and Administration (CRTA) at JAIN (Deemed-to-be University) are excited to introduce a Faculty Development Programme. This programme is designed with a dual focus: to elevate the quality of research within the academic community and to ensure adherence to the highest ethical standards.

This initiative comes in response to the directives from the University Grants Commission (UGC), which highlight the necessity for academic institutions across India to significantly enhance the nation's research contributions. The goal of this program is to tackle the prevalent challenges that compromise both the integrity and effectiveness of scholarly publications, thereby fostering a more ethical and productive research environment.

In a collaborative effort, CeRSSE and CRTA have meticulously engineered the Faculty Development Program to champion the cause of ethical scholarship and research excellence. Targeted at faculty members and academic professionals, the program is structured to impart a nuanced understanding of ethical research practices, ensuring participants are well-equipped to navigate the complex moral landscape of contemporary academia. Through an immersive curriculum, attendees will be exposed to a broad spectrum of ethical considerations essential for conducting research that is both impactful and respected globally. Moreover, the program seeks to instil a culture of continuous learning and improvement, encouraging participants to absorb the principles taught and become ambassadors of ethical research within their respective spheres. By aligning with this program, individuals and institutions alike will play a pivotal role in elevating India's stature on the international research stage, fostering a scholarly community defined by integrity, diligence, and a relentless pursuit of excellence. We cordially invite all interested academics to join us in this vital undertaking, as we strive to shape a future where research integrity and excellence are the hallmarks of our academic institutions.

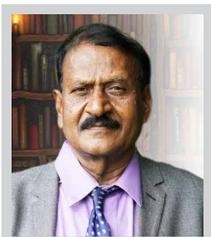

Objectives of the Programme

- Strengthen the foundation of research excellence and integrity through comprehensive education and commitment to ethical standards within the academic community, ensuring all research activities uphold the highest ethical principles.
- Develop a robust ethical mindset and competency among faculty members, providing them with the essential skills and resources to effectively identify and resolve ethical challenges in research and publication processes.
- Encourage a culture of ongoing enhancement and ethical innovation in research methodologies, committing to the principles of ethical integrity and striving for superior quality in academic outputs and scholarly contributions.

Outcomes of the Programme

After participating in this programme, attendees can expect to have a thorough understanding of ethical standards in research and publication. They will be equipped with the ability to apply these principles in their work to enhance integrity and quality in academic research. Along with this, faculty members will possess a comprehensive toolkit for identifying, addressing, and resolving ethical dilemmas in their research projects. This ensures that their work contributes positively to the academic community and adheres to established ethical guidelines. Attendees will be motivated to foster a culture of innovation within their research practices, prioritising ethical considerations and integrity, which in turn will lead to the advancement of their fields and the production of high-quality scholarly contributions.
