Pak art historian visits Jain varsity

Fakir Syed Aijazuddin, the internationally renowned art historian, visited Jain University on February 18. The chairman of the executive committee of the Lahore Museum has been visiting India since mid 1950s. His interaction with students revolved around the Indo-Pak ties. “The perception that both countries have for each other needs to change. Despite being neighbours, we are hardly aware of what the other country really is,” he said.
