

Wednesday, November 18th, 2009

Chance to get a Fulbright edge

Arun Dev. BANGALORE

United State India Education Foundation (USIEF) in association with Fulbright Alumni Association has organised a workshop to create awareness about Fulbright Fellowships at Jain College on the occasion of International Education Week on Tuesday.

The workshop under the theme University Education in the US, was meant to help aspirants who want to apply for the Fulbright Fellowships to study in the US.

Dr RL Kashyap, professor, Purdue University said, "There is a huge difference between the education systems in the US and India. Opportunities like the Fulbright Fellowships will help academics understand the US education system better, which in turn could help students who aspire to study there."

DNA PHOTO

LEADERS: They'll tell you how to get that fellowship

The event was inaugurated jointly by Dr Melukote Sridhar, secretary, Fulbright Alumni Association, Bangalore and Dr Kashyap.

"We are in a process of making academics in the city aware of this opportunity. We hope people will make full use of it," said Dr Sridhar. Over 30 fellowship programmes are offered for Indian nationals by the Fulbright Alumni Association, including six for students, nine for teachers and five for researchers and professionals.